Clients Responsibilities

Under existing Safety Health and Welfare (Construction) legislation, Clients have very specific and important duties and responsibilities. This reflects the very influential role which is played by Clients in construction safety management. Such critical roles include,

- Appointment of competent persons to roles such as PSCS, PSDP, Designers and Contractors,
- Overseeing construction and terminating or changing appointments as necessary,
- Co-operating with those appointed with regard to the time necessary for completion of the project,
- Ensure that the required documents have been prepared and are in place at key stages of the construction process,

In order to assist our clients in fulfilling their obligations as clients, Egan Safety Solutions provides competent and experienced safety consultants to do the following,

- Outline clearly to clients what their role throughout construction is and what their responsibilities are,
- Act as safety adviser to the client throughout the construction process,
- Assist clients when developing tender documents to ensure that all relevant details have been included,
- Assist clients in developing and implementing methods of assessing the competence of those being appointed as duty holders throughout the construction project,
- Assist clients in monitoring the construction work and communicating any areas of concern to appointed duty holders through meetings,
- Assisting clients in ensuring that key documents have been developed at appropriate stages of the construction project,
- Assisting clients in reviewing these documents to ensure that these are to an appropriate standard.
